Temple Complex

ISKCON Temple, designed and built by Achyut Kanvinde who in 1993 agreed to accept a pro-bono commission to build this temple complex for the followers of Srila Prabhupada,[2] is one of the largest temple complexes in India. It comprises numerous rooms for priests and service renders. The temple also has a 375-seater auditorium used for cultural and religious functions. It has many halls that are used for administration purposes and various seminars. It is divided into four broad sections.

Glory of India Vedic Cultural Centre

The temple complex houses the Glory of India Vedic Cultural Centre, a popular destination for visitors and tourists to learn about major Hindu texts which are presented using various multimedia technologies, these include:

1. Bhagavad Gita Animatronics - Using a blend of dramatic narration, lasers, and projects, this show allows the visitors to learn the five major concepts of Bhagavad Gita, the three modes of nature, and the Yoga systems presented therein.
2. Mahabharat Experience - A light and sound show which presents the storyline of Mahabharat which concisely spans over thousands of verses.

3. Ramayana Art Gallery - A collection of over 30 original oil paintings painted by ISKCON's members from the USA, Russia, India, and the UK.
4. Bhagavat Puran Exhibit - This exhibit visually presents one of the most important texts in the Vaishnava tradition.
